Worktribe and ORCID

It is important to keep your ORCID profile updated with your research outputs and this can be achieved by connecting your ORCID profile to your Worktribe account.

Connecting your ORCID profile to Worktribe

In Worktribe, click on the Register or connect your ORCID iD button. Login to your ORCID account and approve the connection. You can also create an account from this button – register for a personal account and then authorise the connection

Once you've connected your Worktribe and ORCID accounts you'll be able to export publication information from USIR to ORCID and vice versa.

Importing outputs from ORCID to USIR

Outputs that are on ORCID but missing on Worktribe will be automatically imported to Worktribe and will appear in the "Assigned to me" section of the Outputs tab.

You will receive a notification when the records have been imported. Add any missing details and add the output file to the record and then click "Send to Library". The Library will also be notified of the addition and will let you know if any more information is need before the record can be made live

Exporting from Worktribe to ORCID

Go to the Outputs tab on Worktribe and select My outputs. From the grey drop down list, select Export.

✉ Library-research@salford.ac.uk   🐦 @OpenResSalford

September 2023

Select Export all record data fields and Bibtex. Click Export.

Export My Outputs

Please select an export format:

- ● Export all record data fields
- ○ Export search result column data only

| BibTex | Excel | CSV | XML | RTF Citation | HTML Citation |

Login to your ORCiD profile and go to the Outputs section. Select Add and Add BibTex and then upload the file exported from Worktribe. Select which outputs you want to export.

Works - Import BibTeX ✕

Import citations from BibTex (.bib) files, including files exported from Google Scholar.

More information on importing BibTeX files into ORCID

Works found in BibTeX (4)

☐ Select all

☐ Assessing and managing transitional read and publish deals : a University of Salford case study
Insights
2022 | journal-article
DOI: 10.1629/uksg.581
Part of ISSN: 2048-7754

Import works to your record   Cancel